The door closed behind the youthful professor's manly back and Princilla realized that the deed was done. She heaved a great sigh. In spite of the memory of Peter, I fear that it was an unctuous sigh.

Poor Peter! Peter Paul Pembroke had been his full name, and when he had, on bent knees, implored Princilla to share it, his suit had been powerfully backed by the prestige and the revenues of the mercantile college, over which he presided as head and chief.

And yet, contrary to the expectation of his friends, he had lived on for fifteen years more. "Kept alive by his young wife," said the inmates of the vine-embowered cottage which adjoined the college precincts. "Afraid to loss sight of her by dying,"

Interpretation of the Rescript by an Eminent Priest.

SUMMER WEAR ONLY ONE DIOCESE APPECTED

Saloon Keepers Not Sweepingly Condemne by the Church, nor Will They Be Debarred from Participation in Catholic Societies nor from the Sacraments.

There is a general impression abroad tha letter which, it is stated, Mgr. Satolli has written to Bishop. Watterson, of Columbus Ohio, puts the ban of the church on all as loon-keepers and all engaged in the liquor

From an interview which a Tracs reporte had with one of the most eminent priests in this diocese, the impression, according to him, is not erroneous but very misleading. Mgr. Satolli it seems has made no official pro nouncement for the church in America, and Columbus, is badly translated, and does not convey the thought of the Pope's representa-tive here. the supposed letter, if written to the bishop of in the press. There is one sentence in the letter which stamps it as unreliable. It is in the third paragraph, which states: Therefore the delegate apostolic sustains Bishop Watterson. The delegate apostolic in an official document could not have written such a statement. If the letter is not fabricated, it is certainly ciumsily translated, "But supposing the circular to be wholly true it would have no effect outside the jurisdiction of the ordinary of Columbus, Bishop Watterson wanted the delegate's approval in a certain action, and the delegate responds approving the action, hence the approval has no force beyond the place for which the opinion was obtained. "Bishop Watterson evidently desires to restrict Catholies from entering the liquor business, and be places the trade under ban in his diocesse. As the bishop of the diocese, with judicial authority in matters spiritual and moral, he has, like every other bishop, the right to regulate these things in his own district.

NO SWEEPING CONDEMNATION. "But it is ridiculous to presume that Mgr. Satolli would make a sweeping condemnation of the wine business. There are very many admirable men who both sell and drink wine. As a matter of fact, nearly every Italian living drinks wine, and the monsignor Italian living drinks wine, and the monsignor doubtless takes wine at his dinner, hence if his supposed words were to be logically construed they would equally apply to the man who drinks and the man who sells. It is not likely that the most reverend apostolic delegate would issue a mandate which would condemn himself. This is hardly possible.

"According to the alleged Satolli letter, it makes him go much farther than the bisnop required. The ordinary desired to expend all makes him go much farther than the bishop required. The ordinary desired to expel all saloon-keepers from holding offices in distinct-ively Catholic societies, while the delegate is made to say that he favors the expulsion of all Catholies from such societies. In doing this he is legislating on a question never put

MERELY A LOCAL BUBIECT.

"But the subject is local to Columbus, and has no effect in this city. I remember a similar case. During the reign of the 'Mollie Maguires' it was presumed that the Ancient Order of Hibernians were leagued with them. Bishop Domineck, of Pittsburg, put every member of the order under the ban of the church, and held each as a reserve case. No member of the order was allowed to partake of the sacraments, and priests were forbidden

Members of the order, however, ignored "Members of the order, however, ignored the bishop's order and simply went to another diocese where there were no ecclesiastical restrictions against them and got the sacraments, hence it will be observed such matters are merely local and circumscribed by the diocese where the difficulties exist."

Efforts were made here to-day to obtain from Mgr. Satolit some further statement regarding the letter written by him to, Bishop. garding the letter written by him to Bishop Watterson, of Columbus, Ohio. Monsignor Satolit, however, declined to see reporters, and in answer to a note sent to him replied that he must positively decline, for the present at least, to say a word on the subject.

The committee on reception to the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias for the August encampment met in the Warder building vesterday afternoon and discussed business in connection with their work. On motion of Mr. Kline it was agreed that Chairman Goodhart be authorized to inquire into the cost of ecorating the ball in which the session will decorating the hall in which the session will be held, in order that the estimate may be submitted to the citizens' committee. Mr. Johnson said that since his last report he had been told the services of the Marine Band would cost $275, instead of $250, and thought this additional amount should be sub-mitted to the citizens' committee for their approval. Mr. Kline suggesteed that the secretary of the citizens' committee be rethe secretary of the citizens committee be re-quested to extend an invitation to the Vice President of the United States to deliver an address of welcome to the members of the supreme lodge. After agreeing to hold regu-iar meetings in the Warder building every Thursday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock, the con mittee adjourned.

Quite a number of additional rooms were registered at headquarters yesterday, but there are not yet nearly enough to accommodate the crowds expected here next month. The public comfort committee desire, through THE TIMES, to impress upon all persons in the city who have rooms to rent at that time to register their accommodations at once.

Determined to End Her Sufferings. While racked with pain and suffering, Mrs Henrietta Sadler, 38 years of age, committed suicide at the house of her sister, Mrs. Charles J. Kibett, No. 206 East Capitol street, yesterday by taking morphine. Mrs. Sadler left a day by taking morphine. Mrs. Sadler left a note addressed to her sister, in which she stated that she would end her life to escape the constant suffering she had been subjected to for the last five years. The note also gave directions for her burial and the disposition of her property. Mrs. Sadler came to this city about a year ago from South Carolina, and has been living with her sister since.

His Resignation Asked For. Secretary Carlisle has called for the resignation of James H. Beatty, chief of the division of receipts and expenditures in the office of the Register of the Treasury.

That it was the acme of an old husband's infatuation which poor Peter suffered was patent to the world. Horrid threats of reapparition from the further realms of shadow, in case of post-mortem infidelity on the widow's part, were rumored to have been la unched forth from his deathbod.

"And yet she'll do it—she'll marry again," nee more announced the wise. Well, she had proved their wisdom. The young professor with the blonde mustache and the eyeglasses, and the German name, who for six months past had been doing such effectual work at the college had come, on consultation with its present nead, just a few times too often to the vine-clad cottage.

How could a solitary woman be expected.

How could a solitary woman be supposed to know how, unaided, to direct such a vast institution? Princilla had fallen to asking

The professor had a keen eye and a facile tongue, and the widow's blood was red. In short, when he had boldly asked her to marry him to-night, she had not said no.

Why should she have said no? she asked herself, a little defiantly, now. She went

Bill in Equity for the Setting Aside of a Christian W. Warneke yesterday filed a bill in equity against Arthur E. Randle, William E. D. Stokes, and others as trustees to set saids a sale under a deed of trust given by Randle to William R. Martin March 13, 1890, for a promissory note for $4,500, payable to William E. D. Stokes, and secured by lots 1 to 9, in block 5, in Kosciusko piace. He claims that he was about to leave the employ of Mr. Randle, but was induced to remain by warranty deed in fee simple of the property spoken of, dated December 18, 1890. He was not informed, however, of the deed of trust. On the same date he accepted the promissory notes made by Randle on condition that he should receive this property unincumbered.

Randle was permitted to take the deed, as he stated that he wanted to have it recorded, and he also promised to return it, which promise he did not carry out until the 3d instant. Seven of the lots were sold and Warneke asks to have the sale set asi je. He also asks that the remainder of the property be sold to anticfy his deed of trust and to also be applied to the payment of two one thousand dollar notes which Randle has not met.

An injunction is asked for also to stop proceedings before a justice of the peace in connection with the property.

Justice Hagner yesterday discharged Josphine Norris from custody. This case was tried on a writ of habeas corpus. Josephine Norris had been convicted in the police court of harboring in her house a young girl under 18 years of age.

Louis R. Pfeifer yesterday filed a biil for William E. D. Stokes, and secured by lots 1

Judge Miller yesterday, without hearing the cridence of the defense, dismissed the case of William L. Wells, who was arrested for selling liquor on Sunday at his house on M street southwest. The arrest and trial grew out of a raid made on Sunday, July 8, by Sergeant Daiey. At the time eight police-men and a number of other persons were found in the house drinking beer. The eight policemen have since been before the police board on trial, but no decisions have as yet been made public by that body.

Grade Crossings Again.

Complaints of the dangerous grade crossings are coming thick and fast from suburban citizens who condemn the inaction of the authorities respecting these nuisances. Bessie Thomas McCormick, of Brookland, wrote to oners yesterday expressing sur prise that no attention is paid to complaints of the insecure protection afforded at that point. There is no watchman at the gate after 8.30 p. m., and an incident is cited where four persons driving in a surrey narrowly escaped being run over by a fast express train on Tuesday evening. They were resound by some gentlemen from a neighbor-resound by some gentlemen from a neighbor-resound by some gentlemen from a neighborescued by some gentlemen from a neighboring store who saw their danger. AS MINISTER TO RUSSIA.

Clifton R. Breckinridge to Represent Our

Country at St. Petersburg. The President sent to the Senate yesterday he name of Representative Clifton R. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Russia. Mr. Breekinridge has had the question of accepting the appointment under consideration for two weeks past, and had seen the President frequently during that period. His decision to accept was not made until yesterday.

The appointment was made very largely because Mr. Breckinridge had been defeated for renomination on account of his attitude on silver repeal and the tariff issue.

Mr. Breckinridge is a native Kentuckine, but went to Arkansas in 1870 and engaged in cotton planting and the commission business. He has served continuously in Congress for twelve years, except when unseated on a cottest in the Fifty-first Congress. He has taken high rank in Congress and is regarded as a man of fine scholarship, polish, and literary attainments. No time has been set for Mr. Breckinridge to take his new post, but an ar-

IN MEMORIAM.

ZYPPRECHT—In loving remembrance of our mother, MINNA ZYPPRECHT, who died one year ago to-day.

o to-day.

Farewell, dear mother, thou art at rest,
And shall forever be;
You could not stay on earth with us,
But we can come to thee.

By HER CHILDREN.

In the window of the veranda, shone upon by the checkered moonlight, as it fell through the vine, stood a ghostly white figure, marvellously little and slight, as if Peter Paul had shriveled six inches in the spirit world. One step forward in the room it took, and a long hand and arm, from which the white drapery fell downward to the floor, pointed toward the bed.

One step forward in the room it took, and a long hand and arm, from which the white drapery fell downward to the Bod.

One great cry Princilla uttered and sprang from the bed. But her paralyzed muscles would carry her no farther. With chattering teeth she swooned on the carpet.

In three minutes there was an irruption of white disheveled figures into the room, Princilla was restored to consciousness, and gave a shrick when she remembered all that had befallen her. But needless to say, there was no ghost on the veranda now.

The following morning there was, betimes, a stealthy stir within the vine-clad cottage. At 10 colock a closed carriage stopped at the door, and Princilla, in the deepest widow's weeds of the first months, got quickly in, and, accompannied by one maid, drove to the railing and station.

Consin Peter always said he'd come back! What is you did speak! And all for "She van away to get away from you," she said. "She was afraid that you would insist to marrying her, and that she'd be too weak its of yours—to have you for my little to send you of. And ahe saw a ghost last night, because she had said yes to you. Cousin Peter always said he'd come back! If she wasn't true to everlasting. Bah! the idea of your wanting to marry her!" The fire burned more flercely in the lowering glance. "She van away to get away from you," she said. "She was afraid that you would insist to said that she'd be too weak its of your. Cousin Peter left to his ripe widow, doubled over a hundred time." "Jessical See here. I'd give more for was a fruit be said. "She was a ghost last night, because she had asaid yes to you. Cousin Peter left to his ripe widow, doubled over a hundred time." "Why did you not say so then, all this time." "Why did you not say so then, all this time." "Why did you know I was I you wanted? And didn't you know I was I you wanted? And didn't you know I was I you wanted? "Why did you know I was I you wanted? "Why did you not say so then, all this time." "Why did you not say?
